Re: The American Chemical Service Site

Dear Sir:

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has documented the release or threatened releases of hazardous substances, pollutants or contaminants at the above referenced site, and is planning to spend public funds to control and investigate these releases. This action will be taken by EPA pursuant to the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA), 42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq., unless EPA determines that such action will be done properly by a responsible party. Responsible parties under CERCLA include the current and former owners or operators, and persons who generated the hazardous substances or were involved in transport, treatment, or disposal of them at the site.

Based on data we received during our investigation concerning the hazardous substances disposed of at this site from 1955 up until at least 1975, EPA has information that indicates that you and/or your firm may be a responsible party. Before the government undertakes necessary action at the site, we would like to know if you will voluntarily perform the work required to abate any releases or threatened releases of hazardous substances, pollutants, and contaminants from the site. You should be aware that under Section 107(a) of CERCLA, where the Agency uses public funds to achieve the cleanup of the hazardous substances, you may be liable for all costs associated with the removal or remedial action and all other necessary costs incurred in cleaning up the site, including investigation, planning and enforcement.
